

The project requires an investment of $85,000 to conduct a large-scale tree plantation drive in urban areas of Brazil. Spanning a duration of 15 months, the initiative is categorized as low-risk and focuses on improving air quality, increasing green cover, and reducing urban heat islands. This effort directly contributes to the environmental sustainability goals of the region.