

The proposed investment involves $67,275 allocated towards a geothermal energy project aimed at reducing greenhouse gas emissions. The project is located in the United States and is expected to span a duration of 19 months. With a medium-risk profile, this initiative aligns with environmental sustainability objectives and seeks to harness renewable energy sources to combat climate change.